About the Conference

The intertwining of physical sciences and life sciences can be understood by the fact that most of the Nobel prizes for chemistry and physics between 2000-2018 has been awarded for life science application discoveries. Chemistry is a discipline which bridges the gap separating physical and life sciences. This in fact motivated us to organize this International Conference on "Recent Advances at Interfaces of Physical and Life Sciences" (RAIPLS-2019) at the Department of Chemistry, University of Rajasthan. This conference has been planned to provide a platform for the eminent scientists and research scholars to interact & share their experiences in the field of physical and life sciences. Particularly it highlights and focuses on the recent advances taking place in these fields.
